WEDNESDAY JULY 14.

United States Senator Leland Stanford, of California, contradicts the report of his intended resignation.

Natural gas has been discovered at a depth of 500 feet near Woreville, eighteen miles from Albany, New York.

The wheat crop of California this year will exceed 70,000,000 bushels—the largest ever harvested. It is expected that California will be able to export 60,000,000 bushels.

The New York Commercial Bulletin places the loss by fire in the United States and Canada between January 1 and June 30 at $53,993,000, or $9,000,000 in excess of the loss during the same period of last year.

Consul General Rames, at Berlin, writes the state department that, notwithstanding the exclusion of American pork, trichinosis is as prevalent in Germany now as it was when American hogs were allowed to be imported into that country.

President Cleveland has pardoned R. Porter Lee, the embezzling president of the First National bank of Buffalo, New York. The main reason given is the need of his wife and five children. Lee embezzled $500,000, and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment. He had served less than half his time.

London dispatches state that an agreement has been arrived at by which Lord Salisbury accepts Lord Hartington's home rule policy, which involves the maintenance of the full powers of the imperial parliament. The Parliaments say they never will accept Hartington's scheme, but will fight and wait until they have secured the passage of the full Gladstone measure. The latest returns place the number of conservatives and unionists elected so far at 365 and 314, respectively.

The various concessions granted in previous years to companies or individuals for narrow-gauge lines in the southern part of Mexico have been merged into one for a narrow-gauge interoceanic route from Acapulco to Vera Cruz, traversing very nearly the ancient route of the Chinese trade with Spain across Mexico. The important links of this line have already been built and are in operation. The portions built are said to pay well. It is possible that the entire route may be completed with foreign capital. The construction of the Topolobampo railway will be begun in October at Topolobampo.

At the commencement of business hours this week, Chicago elevators contained 7,500,000 bushels of wheat, 2,225,378 bushels of corn, 233,937 bushels of oats, 12,424 bushels of rye and 23,504 bushels of barley, making a grand total of 10,273,996 bushels of grain, against 10,056,148 bushels a week ago and 15,930,730 bushels at this period last year. The visible supply of grain on July 10, as compiled by the New York produce exchange: Wheat, 28,567,814 bushels; increase, 373,466 bushels. Corn, 9,180,733 bushels; decrease, 8,069 bushels. Oats, 2,234,884 bushels; decrease, 110,018 bushels. Rye, 234,333 bushels; decrease 40,775 bushels. Barley, 233,871 bushels; increase, 17,100 bushels.

Rear Admiral John Lorimer Worden, of the United States navy (retired), died at his residence in Newport, R. I., Monday night. He had been in feeble health for a long time. Admiral Worden was born at Mount Pleasant, Westchester county, New York, March 12, 1817. He entered the navy as a midshipman in 1835, and was made lieutenant in 1845, and commander in July, 1852. In April 1861, he was sent on a secret mission to the Sabine, off Fort Pickens, and while returning was arrested by order of the rebel General Grant and imprisoned at Montgomery seven months. He was the first prisoner of war held by the rebels. In March, 1862, he commanded the iron clad war steamer Monitor, in its famous and victorious battle with the confederate Merrimack, and was severely injured about the head. While in command of the Monitor, in the south Atlantic blockading squadron, he engaged Fort Mollister, Ga., and destroyed the Nashville under the guns of the fort. From 1869 to 1874 he was in charge of the Naval Academy at Annapolis, and in 1876 was in command of the European Station. He was promoted to rear admiral and placed on the retired list in 1877. For his victory over the Merrimack he received the thanks of congress.

BOUTELLE TO BAYARD.

THE MAINE STATESMAN WRITES A "SARKASTICAL" LETTER.

In Which He Sharply Comments on the Government's Policy Regarding the Rights of American Fishermen in Canadian Waters—A Suggestion That the Administration is a Little Stow.

WASHINGTON CITY, July 14.—Hon. C. A. Boutelle sent a long letter to Secretary Bayard Tuesday in reference to the seizure of American fishing vessels by the Dominion government. After acknowledging the receipt of a letter from Boutelle, Bayard replied to a telegram calling the attention of the government to the arbitrary proceedings of the Dominion government in driving American fishermen away from the waters of St. Andrews Bay. Mr. Boutelle says: "I am pleased to learn by your letter that in response to the representations made by me at our interview on June 2 last, you on the same day drew the attention of the British minister to the alleged threats of such interference by Dominion officials with the purchase of herring for American sailors, and that you were in hopes that further interference with a recognized and legitimate trade between British subjects in Canada and citizens of the United States would be prevented. You do not seem to have been able to obtain from the British government that measure would be taken to prevent such violations of commercial intercourse, but the increased aggressiveness with which the Dominion authorities are displaying to our citizens the ordinary privileges of trade in their ports would indicate that no adequate guaranty of the protection of the commercial rights of our citizens in Canadian waters has yet been secured."

"I am sure that you will agree that the British minister on the subject, and I should be more hopeful that this second notification of the wrongs would be effective, if the course of events did not seem to show that the British government to the representation made by you to its minister more than a month ago."

Mr. Boutelle says he has requested that the letter be forwarded to the Canadian minister at St. Andrews, and thinks that the information contained in his telegram to the department and the narrations in the daily press furnish a sufficient basis for the exposure of the British government's attitude towards our fishermen. Further information from his own officers on the frontier of these violations of international rights "as may be necessary for a prompt, firm, and effective protest on the part of the United States."

His further reply to our national press, that our hardy fishermen and citizens, engaged in legitimate trade, should be chased out of ports of a neighboring country, and have their vessels captured on frivolous charges by so-called cruisers of a British colony; and this mortification becomes a substantial grievance when important industries are obstructed and vessels thus seized are condemned to heavy expenses incurred in the shape of penalties and fines, while the operations of large fleets are abandoned or paralyzed by the uncertainty whether their countrymen will permit them to pursue the pursuit of the arduous and honorable calling. And this notwithstanding that Canadian fishermen are permitted to fish in the United States as a principal profitable market for many millions worth of their catch."

After expressing the belief that the object of the Dominion government is to force a renewal of the abrogated one-sided treaty, and that the aggression among the Canadians has largely stimulated an aggressive policy to that end, Boutelle asserts that this impression has not been lessened on either side of the border by the formalities for clearance maintained by our government in the face of the systematic and exasperating harassment against our fishermen by the Canadian authorities, and the public demand for some effective redress of the commercial rights of the people of the United States is fast becoming unanimous and imperative."

In conclusion, he says: "A general feeling exists that ample occasion has been furnished for the president to exercise his powers conferred upon him by the act of June 10 last to withhold from the vessels of a foreign power the privileges which it consistently denies to ours, and if the president is not already clothed with sufficient authority, there is no doubt that congress will be disposed to strengthen his hands in any way that may be shown to be necessary to render our protest against the disregard to our flag and the violations of our commercial rights."

Mistaken for a Barbarian.

CINCINNATI, July 14.—William Kover, a young man, 19, who resided with his father, a well-known and wealthy farmer of the village of Camp Washington, shot and fatally wounded Mary Riley, a domestic in his father's house at 2 o'clock Tuesday morning, when standing near the window. Supposing a burglar had effected an entrance, he drew from under his pillow a .32-caliber revolver, and taking hasty aim, fired at the supposed burglar. The bullet, lodged in the left breast, just above the heart, and although the girl still lingers, there is little hope of her recovery. The girl arose during the prevalence of a severe storm, and the father, who explains her presence in young Kover's room at the time she was shot.

Enough to Police Anybody.

RAVE, Pa., July 14.—The city is greatly excited over the pronounced fatal case of blood-poisoning from the bite of a drunken man. A week ago the children of Martin Stadtmiller appealed to Frank Root for protection from the attacks of their father, who was intoxicated. In defending the children Root received a bite in the hand, from the effects of which blood-poisoning, accompanied by insanity, has resulted. He can not recover.

Killed His Wife's Father.

TRUCKEEVILLE, Ill., July 14.—John W. Corgan, an old and respected citizen of Tamarac, was shot and killed Tuesday morning by his son-in-law, Harvey Miller. They had had a quarrel regarding the property on which Miller lived, and which belonged to Corgan, and the killing was the result. Miller is in jail here awaiting a preliminary examination. He claims the deed was done in self-defense.

Hillside Farmers Who Are Fired.

CENTRALIA, Ill., July 14.—The continued drought and the failure of the wheat crop, which has occurred for several years, has occasioned, and the unprecedented ravages of the chinch bug, have induced many of the farmers to form themselves into a colony for the purpose of removing in a body to Oregon. Forty families have organized a section at Walnut Hills with a president and secretary, and are corresponding with railroads for cheap rates.

Suit has been brought in the federal court at Austin, Texas, against John V. and C. B. Farwell and their associates in the state house contract for importing eighty-six granite-cutters from Scotland, in violation of an act of congress.

Suit, Charles Smith, Peter Smith, Mary Smith, Charles Smith's death is expected. The injuries were all received by jumping from the windows, so rapidly did the flames make their way. The lower part of the building was used for stabling forty-two horses. In the rear of the upper story was the store-room containing thirty-five carriages and other vehicles. Thirteen of the horses were burned and suffocated. Two canes, and the rest of the forty-two are suffering from the inhalation of smoke. All the vehicles were destroyed and the building is almost a total loss. The estimated damage to the carriages, etc., in the building is $25,000. As at the burning house of Mr. R. A. Mudgett, caused by the upset

CHARGES REPUDIATED.

PARNELL SAYS HARTINGTON IS GUILTY OF MENDACITY.

In Charging That the Nationalists Are Hand-to-Glove with the Fenians—The Home Rulers Encouraged to Stand Firm and Keep Up the Contest—More Household.

LONDON, July 14.—In a speech Monday night Lord Hartington declared that Parnell had accepted an alliance with Fenian organizations in America and Ireland. Continuing he said he did not know the terms of that alliance, or the exact objects of which were nothing short of complete independence and separation, and the establishment of an independent Irish republic. It was, therefore, that a majority of the leaders of the movement openly declared that all means, including violence, bloodshed, and destruction of property, were justifiable and admissible to attain their ends. Therefore, no English political party could creditably adopt or identify itself with such proposals. Lord Hartington upbraided the members of the government who, he said, while serving the United Kingdom, had formed an alliance with members of a parliamentary party having at least a connection with associations whose aims were treasonable and whose ends were obtained by nefarious means. He concluded, "to our Irish-American enemies in order to obtain a temporary respite, we or our successors will sooner or later have to fight the battle over with divided means. If we exercise old English judgment, fortitude, patience, and courage we will defeat and crush the nefarious designs of the conspirators against the empire." (Enthusiatic cheers.) Referring to the above in a lecture, Parnell declared that Hartington's statements are untrue. He says he knows nothing whatever of the existence of a Fenian organization either in Ireland or America beyond what he has learned from the newspapers. He has never had any communication with the Fenian leaders or accepted an alliance with them, nor does he even know who the leaders are. No union of the Irish party or the National league with the Fenians has ever been proposed, nor will he have ever consented to such a union.

Disappointed But Not Despondent.

DUBLIN, July 14.—T. M. Healy, Parnellite, M. P., for Londonborough south, presided at the fortnightly meeting of the National League in this city Tuesday. After announcing that during the past two weeks 21,000 had been subscribed by America to the parliamentary fund, Mr. Healy said, referring to the result of the election in London, although disappointed should not be despondent. The defeat was only temporary. A million electors had written "home rule" on their polling papers as against the unbecomingly triple alliance. He said Mr. Healy predicted that a coalition government could not exist three months.

More Turbulence.

LONDON, July 14.—An Orange lodge in Coal Island, a small village in the County Tyrone, four miles from Dungannon, was attacked Monday night by a number of men belonging to the National league. The attacking party were armed with rifles and kept up a fire for two hours on the lodge, the police being powerless to interfere.

Armed moonlighters Monday night attacked and secured possession of two houses at Farnham and Kinnaird, Co. Cork county. They entered and severely beat the tenants.

Nothing at Belfast Again.

BELFAST, July 14.—Serious rioting between Protestants and Catholics broke out Tuesday evening. Sticks, stones, revolvers, etc., were used freely on both sides, and the police were for a time unable to suppress the disorder. The military were finally called out, and the rioters were dispersed. The police dispersed the mob. Many persons were injured, the most serious being conveyed to the hospital. The military are patrolling the streets.

Might Have Been Expected.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The failure of J. De Rivera & Co., the South American commission merchants, is not so bad as was reported. The liabilities are large, but as well as can be ascertained at present they are not more than $200,000, and are almost, if not wholly, covered by the assets. No trace as to the whereabouts of Henry C. De Rivera, one of the firm, has as yet been discovered.

NEW YORK, July 14.—Mr. De Rivera, the missing sugar merchant, has been heard from at Montreal.

Not Much of a Strike.

OMAHA, Neb., July 14.—The manager of the Western Union office at this place Tuesday interrogated each of the operators, inquiring the second day Monday, and all except three disclaimed any connection with it. The three quit work. None of the men at San Francisco has struck; about fifteen are out here.

Famous Organist Dead.

BOSTON, July 14.—Joseph G. Lennon, the famous organist, died at 10:30 Tuesday night.

AT THE SUMMER RESORTS.

The angler sits upon the bank and waits to catch the fish. And there, at intervals, is heard the gurgling of the jug. —Boston Courier.

BRIEF NOTES.

—Last day of the circus.

—The Canada thistles are being harvested.

—The O'Connell branch held a business meeting at Leppin's hall Sunday afternoon.

—Wisconsin Lodge No. 14, I. O. O. F., occupy Odd Fellows hall this evening—regular weekly meeting.

—The dogs entered this far for the Milwaukee hound show, which is to open July 20th, are valued at $200,000.

—The case of George W. Frost, 29, signed, against the Citizens' National Bank of Beloit, has been on trial before Judge Bennett all day.

—Badger Council No. 223, Royal Arcanum, assembled in regular semi-monthly session this evening—Lodge room in the Lupton block, East Milwaukee street.

—The Caledonian society will meet in the Good Templars hall, Court Street M. E. church block to-morrow evening. All Scotchmen and their families are invited.

—The types made the name of A. M. Valentine appear in the score of the Quaker Hill shooting match yesterday, where that of C. L. Valentine was intended.

—Rev. F. C. Archibald, D. D., will deliver a lecture on "Literature" at the First M. E. church on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Dr. Archibald is an able speaker. Come and hear him.

—Thomas Riley and Frank Hennessey, the two young men who are charged, one with an assault with a deadly weapon and the other with resisting an officer in the discharge of his duties, appeared in the municipal court this morning and had their cases postponed until one week from next Friday.

—Ald. T. T. Croft expects to take a trip to Europe in the very distant future. The story that a large estate awaits the Croft family in London, is the remote object of the contemplated visit, which will be seriously considered as soon as all the "sisters and cousins, and aunts," are heard from, and contribute their "twenty-five dollars" apiece to prove up.

—A man who had looked too long upon the cup that inherites, fell from a wagon near the brewery on South Main street and without waiting to be assigned a room, at once secured sleeping accommodations on a pile of weeds near the road. This morning he discovered that in his fall considerable damage had been done and he was obliged to have a doctor called before he could resume his journey.

—The signatures of a majority of the tax payers have been secured on the petition for the Evansville cut off. Mr. L. B. Carle is still at work, however, for he wants the matter settled beyond question. It is not settled whether the names of firms can be counted when each member of the firm is also an individual tax payer, and enough will be secured to avoid the necessity of "doing this."

We wish to call the attention of our readers to the grand closing out sale of summer goods at J. M. Bostwick & Sons. They have made a general "cut down" on the prices of all summer goods—such as lawn, batiste, organdies, percales, satines, etc. You will be benefited by calling on them, if you wish anything in summer goods, shawls, spring wraps, parcels, and a long list of other desirable things. This sale will continue during the remainder of the summer, and low prices will be the watchword. They still continue to give away handsome oil paintings with $20 and $30-dollar purchases.

—Last evening there was a pleasant gathering of the members of the Janesville Choral Union at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Church, (Washington street, first ward). The company congregated by invitation of Mrs. Church in order that the members of the Union might have an opportunity to become better acquainted with their leader, Prof. L. A. Torrens, who was present. It was therefore a gathering of the musical talent of our city. The party was joyfully entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Church. A bountiful supply of refreshments were served to the guests, and the "social" was one of the most pleasant and enjoyable. There were between fifty and sixty ladies and gentlemen present.

—The Wisconsin summer resorts are attracting a great deal of attention from bicycle tourists. At the Myers house to-day was registered the Owl Cycling club, of Chicago, the members being on their way around the state. The names of those forming the party are Fred Brooks, H. T. Post and F. A. Smith. They started from Chicago last Saturday at noon and since then have visited Fox Lake and Lake Geneva, spending one day in fishing at the latter place. Leaving this afternoon they went to Milton Junction, intending to stay overnight there, and in the morning wheel out towards Whitewater. They will visit the Madison lakes, Oconomowoc, Waukegan and Milwaukee before returning to their homes. About thirty miles a day is their average, as they usually ride only during the mornings.

—Constant use of Fairbank's Soap for washing purposes benefits and softens the skin.

—The troupe of trained horses which have been giving exhibitions under canvas at the head of Milwaukee street since Monday, are in some respects the most wonderful ever seen in Janesville. When the fact is considered that the Bronco horses were running wild in the plains of Oregon less than one year ago, the proficiency of training speaks much for the intelligence of the horse and the ability of the trainer. The entertainment does not partake of the circus in any feature and merits a much larger patronage than it has received. The management are gentlemen in every sense of the term. Attend the closing performance to-night and you will be well satisfied with the investment of time and money. The company go to Rockford to-morrow where they will exhibit for the balance of the week.

The great benefit to a lady's hands from using Fairbank's Soap insures its popularity.

NEWARK SUICIDE.

J. M. Warren, Town Clerk of Newark, Committee Suicide by Shooting.

[Beloit Free Press.]

J. Milton Warren, aged about 30 years, a farmer living between eight and nine miles west of the city, committed suicide this morning, at six o'clock, by shooting himself through the head with a revolver. He had been an intense sufferer from a spinal difficulty for many years, and for the past few days his suffering seemed to have preyed upon his reason. He had expressed the belief that he would eventually lose his mind, which thought had worried him greatly. He was unmarried, and his parents lived with him on his farm. The brief facts of this sad suicide are brought out at the coroner's inquest Tuesday forenoon as follows:

About six o'clock Mr. Warren, as he often did, took his revolver from the house and went into the barn, where, in a few moments a pistol shot was heard by the other members of the family. They paid no attention to this, however, until they had called Milton to breakfast, soon after. His failure to respond caused his father to go to the barn and there upon the stable floor lay the young man apparently dead, with a bullet wound in the right temple. The agonized father at once informed the neighbors and sent for a physician and the wounded man was taken to the house where he died shortly after.

Mr. Warren was a man of ability, but thirteen years ago while on the plains, his spine was injured, and he has since been obliged to walk with the aid of two canes, and he has often remarked that life was a burden. It is said that lately he informed his parents that he could not bear the torture he was in much longer. At the time of his death deceased was town clerk of Newark.

Annual Session of the 13th Wisconsin.

COMRADES—A quarter of a century has elapsed since we rallied round the old flag on Camp Treadway. It seems fitting that we commemorate the 25th anniversary of the organization of our regiment on that historic ground. Our annual reunion therefore, will be held in connection with the general reunion for Rock county soldiers at the fair grounds in Janesville, on Friday, September 17, 1886.

The Rock County Agricultural society will provide tents and will admit free of charge all comrades who may attend. Those who desire to stay on the grounds either Thursday or Friday nights should bring blankets. Meals will be furnished at low rates.

Colonel Lyon, Governor Jerry Rusk, Phil. Cheek, Jr., and other distinguished comrades will be with us. Let every survivor of the "13th" make a special effort to attend what may be to many of us our last reunion.

Those paying full fare to Janesville will return at one-fifth fare.

SAM. C. COBE, PRINCE NORCROSS, W. P. CLARKE, Reception Committee.

Death of Henry K. Whitton.

The following dispatch was received at this office at half-past two o'clock this afternoon:

CHICAGO, July 14, 1886.

To Janesville Gazette:

Henry K. Whitton died here this morning.

J. A. STARR.

This will be sad news to all the old residents of Janesville, where the deceased resided for many years, in the practice of law. He removed to Chicago some twenty years ago and resided there until his death. Mr. Whitton was a man of many virtues, and as a lawyer, in the intricate matters of real estate transfers he had no peer. Deceased was a nephew of the late Chief Justice E. V. Whitton, of this city; he was twice married, his first wife being killed in an accident at the Jackson street railroad crossing this city. He leaves besides his widow, a family of five children. Deceased visited this city about two weeks ago and was a guest of Dr. J. B. Whiting, with whose family he was always at home.

A Card.

In justice to myself and those who desire my services I state: The report widely circulated that I charge five to ten dollars for treatment is untrue. My prices are at office, from one to three dollars—have charged no one more; at residence I charge the same with addition of call fee. The report that I am a clairvoyant is also untrue, or if I am I don't know it. I only heal by this natural power invested in me, the efficiency of which has been well proven in the place. It works equally wonderful upon saint or sinner, believer or unbeliever. I lay claim to no supernatural agency. I am a regular physician of thirty years' experience in medical practice and no doubt am more surprised at the results obtained daily by the laying on of hands than any of my patrons.

Respectfully C. A. MINNER, M. D.

Miss Lillie Skene is prepared to give lessons and take orders in embroidery and would be pleased to see all her friends and all those that are lovers of needlework. She will be found at Mrs. Baddler's store, South Main street.

THE GOGEBEC RANGE.

The Rapid Growth of Harley, and Other Mining Towns.

To the Editor.

HARLEY, Wis., July 10, 1886.

It is rather by accident than by premeditation, that a letter is sent to you from this place. To one who has recently visited the orange groves of California, traversed the arid regions of Arizona, looked upon the gorges and mountains of Colorado, and lingered for a season on the plains of Kansas, the transition to the social, physical and scientific peculiarities of this northern country is accompanied with sensations of surprise and interest. The good fortune is not given to every son of Adam to get into the midst of a great and overwhelming boom; a boom in which every effort develops into enthusiasm and enthusiasm into infatuation; in which any person with a more magic wand than a common spade, can smite the earth, and countless tons of iron ore will gush forth; in which every town will become a metropolis and every resident a millionaire; and in which those who stand apart to gaze upon the universal display of lunacy, are considered idiots of the first water. There are some weather-beaten veterans in this region of several campaigns of this kind and they say; that the scenes now being unrolled through the Gogebec country are almost identical to those of GREENSBORO AND JULESBURG.

Twenty years ago, there is the same pushing, money making element; the same lawless, reckless, rubble, the same gamblers, robbers, and thieves; the same restless, aimless, homeless crowds—all waiting for something to turn up. One thing here, however, tones down the roughness and qualifies the coarseness, and that is the presence of the families of some of the men; a modifying influence to which the cities of the plains were strangers.

But there are still whiff-whiff only temporary afflictions. It is now just a year since the Milwaukee, Lake Shore & Western railroad extended its line along the Gogebec range. The road then traversed a country of as bowling and dismal a kind as can be furnished this side of the Rocky mountains. Three years ago some mineral discoveries were made, but they were not so important as to indicate the general presence of iron; in fact, some skilled prospectors examined the ground which is now known as the Ashland mine—one of the largest and richest of all the properties—and became convinced of its worthlessness. Two years ago there was some activity along the range and good ore had been found at several places; but the first shipment to the docks at Ashland from these new mines was made on July 13, 1885, less than one year ago.

is the name of the city which is almost in the center of the Gogebec district. It is in Wisconsin, while on the north side of the Montreal river—a stream two or three times as large as our own Spring Brook—is situated Ironwood, in Michigan. In May, 1885, Harley contained three buildings of all kinds. Within its walls there are now probably more than two thousand people. The town has the appearance and transitory appearance indicative of such a rocket-like ascent. The only building in the place about which there is a suggestion of any other material than lumber is the bank block which has a veneered brick front. Long rows of buildings, whose natural color there has been no attempt to conceal, extend along the streets. There is a general air of newness everywhere—on the large number of children, which is out of all proportion to the number of visible families—on the uniform size. The former character of the site of the city is well shown by the obstructions which are still abundant in the avenues. In fact the streets are of the residents. There will be found a general assortment of stumps, stones, and swine, of babies, beer kegs and bonfires. But the general presence of the utilitarian inclinations of the denizens of Harley does not prevent various manifestations of an active aesthetic aspiration. There are thirty places where spirituous liquors are sold but not a single saloon. The "Bon-Ton," the "Palace of Gargantuan," the "Capitol" and "Bibb's Gentlemen's Resort" illustrate this tendency in a certain way of life; while a barber hangs on the outer wall of his one story, unpainted room the legend "Elegant Tonsorial Parlors" and a butcher triumphantly proclaims his calling by throwing to the breeze a banner inscribed "The Gogebec Meat and Provision company."

The town is largely owned by a very few individuals. More than one hundred buildings have been erected this season. Mr. J. E. Darrow, of Geneva Lake, has a large interest in the surrounding mines; he is putting up a $25,000 hotel and within a few months he has added twenty-eight dwellings and six stores to the place. Names well known to the people of Rock county are household words in this country. Judge Lyon, of the supreme court of Wisconsin, is a director in the Ashland mine; A. A. Hoskins, formerly a Methodist clergyman in Shoupe, is conspicuous in several properties; while Joseph Charles, of Racine, W. D. Parker, of River Falls, and C. F. P. Pullen, of Evansville, are directors in various companies. Mr. Reichwald, formerly of the savings bank of Janesville, has an interest in a mine a few miles to the east of Ironwood; and if his looks and words are an index of the situation, he is having a prosperous campaign; and Frank Teland, formerly special general to Hamlin, Ont., is the local editor of the Harley Tribune.

The inhabitants in this region claim that the climate is a sure remedy for bronchitis, asthma and the great of that class of diseases. Only twelve miles to the west of this place and Lake Superior; and secure breezes from that unqualified sea reach here laden with the remedial perfumes of the pine, spruce and tamarack. There is certainly an element in the air very

which is, perhaps, partially to be attributed to the presence of so vast an amount of metal deposits. Even the casual visitor, with a few moments' pondering, feels the improving of the change and realizes that it is a curative properties of a permanent nature, the remedy would be much more agreeable to an invalid
